RE: Rescheduling of the Summer 2022 Lawyer Licensing Examinations

As lawyer licensing candidates registered to write the summer 2022 barrister and solicitor examinations, we would like to express our sincere frustration and disappointment regarding the LSO's decision to reschedule these examinations to July.

As law students with busy lives and many competing obligations, we relied on the dates that you provided us in making important decisions about our lives and careers. Many lawyer licensing candidates have made plans to write examinations in other jurisdictions, made costly travel plans, and otherwise depended on the clear instructions that the LSO gave us about when we were scheduled to write our examinations. Some licensing candidates have arranged to commence their articling term before this new examination period is over.

By changing these dates with such minimal notice, the LSO has disrupted the important plans made by countless future lawyers. This disruption not only impacts the individual lives of licensing candidates, but undermines the LSO's role as an efficient, transparent and fair regulator that is sensitive to the needs of those whom it regulates.

The graduating class of 2022 has dealt with countless interruptions to our education and careers created by the COVID-19 pandemic. The rescheduling of our examinations compounds these interruptions and further undermines our ability to predictably plan the development of our budding careers.

Further, this change will disproportionately impact marginalised licensing candidates who are already facing structural barriers to accessing the legal profession. For example, this rescheduling risks disproportionate harm to licensing candidates who require time off from employment to study and write their licensing examinations. Therefore, this decision undermines the LSO's mandate to expand access to the legal profession (LSO Governance Practices and Policies, Part 1, Section 1, 4).

We implore the LSO to provide lawyer licensing candidates the option to write the barrister and solicitor examinations according to the original schedule the LSO provided at the outset of the licensing process.
