

Not-for-profit management liability.

Background

Those responsible for the management and administration of 'not-for-profit' organisations or charities are often unpaid, but this does not absolve them from their duties as trustees and managers or protect them from numerous potential liabilities.

Liabilities can arise from many areas; breach of trust or duty, employment disputes, investigations, breach of contract and breach of professional duty, to name but a few.

Scope of cover

As an experienced writer of numerous charities and associations we are able to identify and deal with the management and professional risks faced by all interested parties.

This policy covers the governors, directors, council members, officers, trustees, employees and the 'not-for-profit' organisation or charity for a wide range of management and professional risks, as well as providing a range of meaningful policyholder services.

Cover is provided under separate insuring clauses as appropriate and includes:

- Executive liability
- Professional liability
- Entity defence (optional)
- Employment law protection (optional)
- Fidelity (optional)

Policyholder services
